

Tax-Exempt Municipal Bonds Sustain Utah's Water Infrastructure

$264.2 million – The value of tax-exempt municipal bonds communities across Utah issued in 2016 to fund improvements to drinking water and wastewater infrastructure.

$112.2 million – Additional debt service costs cities and towns in Utah would incur over their payback periods if interest earned on these bonds was fully taxable, a 25 percent increase.***

$15.7 million – Clean Water and Drinking Water State Revolving Fund assistance the federal government provided to Utah in 2016. Fully taxing municipal bond interest would cost the state 7 times the value of this year's SRF assistance.

Affordable investment in Utah's water infrastructure should not be a consequence of tax reform.

AMWA and NACWA urge you to preserve tax-exempt municipal bonds.

ASSOCIATION OF METROPOLITAN WATER AGENCIES

NACWA
A Clear Commitment to America's Waters

*Based on Bloomberg data assuming uniform $50 million projects with 30-year loan maturities and "AA" credit ratings.